“One of our greatest strengths is marketing the vision of a property – how to communicate where an asset is going; not just what it is or where it was.”

Tony Russo joined Cawley Chicago in 2012 and possesses over 15 years of real estate experience in the suburban Chicago area. Prior to joining Cawley Chicago, Tony spent 6 years working for a competing real estate company where he was particularly successful in the leasing of assets with high vacancy rates and time on market.

Tony represents tenants and landlords in the acquisition, disposition, leasing and/or marketing of commercial office, medical and flex properties. As an owner of investment properties himself, Tony offers a creative and entrepreneurial approach for his clients.

Tony has a well-rounded and diverse real estate background and works diligently towards meeting the goals of every client he represents.
